Carrier-sense multiple access with collision detection (CSMA/CD) is a media access control method used most notably in early Ethernet technology for local area networking. It uses carrier-sensing to defer transmissions until no other stations are transmitting. This is used in combination with collision detection in which a transmitting station detects collisions by sensing transmissions from ...

Time Series Analysis for Business Forecasting

Time is the indefinite continued progress of existence and events that occur in apparently irreversible succession from the past through the present to the future. Time is a component quantity of various measurements used to sequence events, to compare the duration of events or the intervals between them, and to quantify rates of change of quantities in material reality or in the conscious ...

The Multiple correspondence analysis (MCA) is an extension of the simple correspondence analysis (chapter @ref(correspondence-analysis)) for summarizing and visualizing a data table containing more than two categorical variables. It can also be seen as a generalization of principal component analysis when the variables to be analyzed are categorical instead of quantitative (Abdi and Williams 2010).

Vitamin D insufficiency has recently emerged as a risk factor for susceptibility to multiple sclerosis (MS). The investigator's observational data suggest that lower vitamin D levels in patients with relapsing-remitting MS are associated with a higher subsequent relapse rate.

Stall Speed at $C_{lmax}=x.xx$ - This appears only on the in-flight analysis, and only if the wing area and airframe weight were specified for the model. It indicates the range of speeds which are at or below the aircraft's stall speed at the maximum lift coefficient (i.e. the speed below which the aircraft cannot fly).
